Australia, Queensland - Aurality - Leah Barclay - variable - 2017 - geo-located

AURALITY is an augmented reality audio project exploring Queensland's rainforests, rivers and reefs through music, sound and acoustic ecology. The sound walks can be experienced by downloading the free mobile app AURALITY (for iOS and android) that uses GPS points along the coast of Queensland to trigger soundscapes based on location and movement. AURALITY sound walks explore the value of acoustic ecology and augmented reality for conservation and climate action. This project is created by Leah Barclay, a multi-award winning Australian sound artist working at the intersection of art, science and technology.
