UK Brighton - The Hum - Nic Sandiland - upto 120' - 2017 - audio, geo-located

The Hum is a reflection and meditation on our own everyday interactions with the city. Half cinema, half reality, the piece weaves together visuals of your location with a specially composed soundtrack on your smartphone. The work explores the subtle qualities of observed and experienced movement to create a series of narratives ranging from the poetic and humorous through to the ironic and subversive.

Re-visiting the mundane activities of our everyday lives, The Hum questions and elevates these inadvertent acts of choreography. At times profound yet often personal it is an immersive work that reveals an alternative view of the city through movements that take place within it.
